

Help with king tides

December 1, 2020

The California King Tides Project is asking the public to safely photograph the highest high tides of the year, arriving Dec. 13-15.

Photographing the impact of these tides on beaches, wetlands, roads, harbors and homes helps California plan for future sea level rise. Anyone with a smartphone can participate.

Find out what time your nearest king tides arrive and how to contribute your photos to this community science project at california.kingtides.net.
