

Historical President Inaugurated 2.0

January 28, 2025

President-elect Donald J. Trump is now President Trump, as he was inaugurated at 12:01PM as the 47th President of the United States. The traditional outside ceremony was suspended due to extreme weather conditions. The actual swearing-in took place in the Capitol Rotunda before an audience of about 600 VIPs, including members of Congress and all nine Justices of the Supreme Court, Monday January 20 on Martin Luther King, Jr. Day.

Prior to the Swearing-in, the President-elect hosted a rally with a standing room only crowd of 23,000 at the Capital One Arena.

President Trump took his Oath administered by the 17th Chief Justice John Roberts as only the second President to serve his second term, interrupted by the one term Presidency of Benjamin Harrison. Grover Cleveland was the 22nd and 24th President elected to non-consecutive terms in 1888 and 1892, respectively. Associate Justice Brett Kavanaugh administered the Oath to Vice President-elect JD Vance.

Millions more across the country and around the globe watched the event on television.

The Parade and all related public events were canceled.

Following the Ceremony, the President signed an estimated 200 Executive Orders (EO) as part of his first official acts. The range of EO's concerned Border Security / Deportation orders of Criminal Aliens, Gender Affirmation in Collegiate Sports, Declaration of two genders: male and female, TikTok continuation immediately, Re-start Energy Exploration, Tariff Implementation and scale back of Diversity, Equity, Inclusion (DEI) mandates across all Federal agencies from the previous Administration.

Security was palpably tight at the Rotunda. The Inauguration proceeded successfully, without incident.

The now 47th President Trump delivered a Make America Great Again speech, calling January 20, 2025 as Liberation Day. Audience applause was profound.

“Impossible is what we (America) do best. We will not fail,” declared President Trump.

A new era has begun on America’s historical journey.
